

Transcript for Strip

034 — Measuring Up

- Panel 1: In the kitchen of the house, Theo (white tiger) is at the stove preparing some dinner, while Sheila (kangaroo) and Lightfoot (red fox) sit at the table nearby. Frowning, Theo grumps, “I’d really like to find out who publishes these idiotic nutritional panels.” Sheila asks, “What’s the deal?”
- Panel 2: Theo looks at the box he’s holding. “According to this box of Burger Buddy, their Untidy Joseph variety, one pound of ground beef, plus these noodles, is supposed to provide four servings.” Lightfoot laughs, “Sounds unlikely to me.”
- Panel 3: Sheila says, “I hope you’re making a double batch there, tiger.” Theo, stirring the ingredients in the pan, replies, “You’d better believe it. One box would only be enough for four starving refugees.” “On a good day,” Lightfoot agrees.
- Panel 4: Rechecking the box, Theo cries out in alarm, “Wait a minute, it says FIVE servings!” Raising a finger to make his point, Lightfoot says, “Ah, supermodels!”

