

Transcript for Strip

096 — Rapid Response Time

Panel 1: We see Lightfoot in his room in the house, in his “furry” form as a red fox, dressed in his usual blue jeans and open leather vest. He is sitting at a desk with his computer keyboard and screen in front of him. He turns when he hears Theo's voice behind him. The white tiger is standing in the doorway to the bedroom, wearing his usual knee-length trousers. Grinning, he asks, “Hey, Lightfoot, got a question... would a two-physician practice be a paradox?”

Panel 2: Before Lightfoot can respond, his computer begins to signal him, making ping-pong noises. Both he and Theo (who is still in the doorway) look toward the monitor.

Panel 3: Theo has entered the room and is standing behind Lightfoot. Both of them look mildly confused. Theo asks, “What's going on?”

Panel 4: Dismayed, Lightfoot answers, “We're already getting emails asking for an explanation of that joke.” Theo says, “Hey, that was one of the good ones...”

