009 — Objection Overruled

Panel 1: In the small dining room area, Ophelia, Caedmon, and Lightfoot are enjoying their meal. The lady skunk says, “Thanks for cooking dinner, Lightfoot.” The badger adds, “Yes, it’s very good.” The gentlemanly fox demurs, “Oh, you’re welcome. How was your day, Ophelia?”

Panel 2: Ophelia, shrugging, tells them, “When I was in law school, I never dreamed that people could be so stupid about things. It seems that they’ll sue each other rather than talk to each other.”

Panel 3: The picture is much closer on Ophelia as she holds up a frustrated fist. “The things these people argue about,” the lady skunk complains, “land, money, the right to screw people over. It’s enough to make me wanna—”

Panel 4: The picture has pulled back to show the full dining area, and the badger and fox have dived under the table, holding their noses. Ophelia, smiling, says, “Don’t panic guys, my tail is under control.”
